

October

Grade 5 Newsletter – October in Review

Introduction... We are continuing to work hard in this first semester. Students have participated in a few field trips, but they have not forgotten about their academic work.

In English Language, students have finished up all the stories in the first unit and are currently working on a descriptive essay of a famous historical figure. They are working on mastering the writing process. We are learning to revise our own work and peer edit others' essays. We are using the computer lab to hand in final drafts for grading.

In Mathematics, We have completed the topic of multiplication and will continue to practice throughout the year. We are in the midst of practicing long division and are working on understanding all types of word problems.

In Social Studies, we are continuing to study the interactions of the Indigenous Peoples and the European Explorers.

In Science, we are well underway in the weather and climate unit. Students are understanding key concepts and working individually in preparation for experiment work.

Happy October!
