

December

Grade 6 Newsletter – December in Review

Introduction... I wanted to take a moment to wish you and your families a happy and safe holidays. I hope that you are able to spend time with your loved ones and enjoy the feelings of happiness and joy that such family holidays bring.

In English Language, we began the third unit in the Keystone book and are going to look at the theme of how helping others, helps us.

Students are also practicing writing skills and reviewing grammar concepts during many in-class projects and activities.

In Mathematics, we have looked at fractions, decimals, and percents. Students are working to examine the relationships between the three, as well as to complete different mathematical operations.

In Social Studies, students have completed a short poster examining the different symbols of Canada and we are now looking at the government's role in inclusiveness and the international stage, specifically regarding the United Nations.

In Science, we have finished up the unit on biodiversity and taxonomy by looking at different vertebrates and how their characteristics have adapted over time to their environments.

Happy December!
