

Grade 7 October News

Language Arts...

We have begun the second unit in our Keystone books and we will soon begin reading The Maze Runner, our second novel. Students are eagerly practicing their presentation skills, and students were able to share how to do something. We will continue to write different types of texts, both prose and poetry. In grammar, we are looking at active and passive voice as well as verbs that are used as adverbs, adjectives, or nouns.

Mathematics...

This month has been full of making math an engaging, yet an educationally fun subject to learn about. We have been able to put forth the effort of doing more math class competitions, along with small group work that allows students to learn not only from the teacher, but also one another.

Science...

Students working on muscular action, natural curvature of the spine, postural defects and defects of the foot.

History...

Students are working harder and harder each month. We have been able to work more on group projects, this time on poster presentations. Students researched: the union of Italy, the union of Germany, the American Civil War, and colonization.
