Grade 3 Newsletter – October 2023 in Review

Introduction...

October was an interesting month. We concluded a project and started a novel. With me spending 6 days in the hospital, the month finished far differently than I had planned.

In English Language, we began reading our first novel of the year, "The Secret Garden". Our spelling lessons and quizzes continued with our words coming from the novel. We wrote the words, the definitions, and a sentence for each word in our language notebook. We continued using kidsa-z.com for online reading on Tuesday mornings.

In Mathematics, we learned how to round numbers to the nearest 10 or 100 and to use rounding to estimate. We used curriculum I found and the online site IXL.com. On IXL.com, the students can work at their own pace on the skill we are focusing on and will receive immediate feedback if their answer is correct. The site will give an explanation if the answer was wrong.

In Social Studies, we learned about Canadian indigenous groups using our CCC book.

In Science, we concluded our study of soil using our CCC book.

In Art, we learned about Georges Seurat and his style of painting called Pointillism. We also completed some pictures via Art for Kids Hub on youtube.com.

Happy October!
