What We Learned...

March 2026

Language Arts

Students have completed unit four in their Cornerstone book with a presentation to the class where they advertised a product that could solve a problem they have. They completed their novel Stuart Little. They have written a short essay using details they learned throughout the book. Students have started their last novel, Charlotte's Web. They are focused on identify character traits, and writing main ideas and supporting details.

Mathematics

Students have completed their unit on adding and subtracting fractions with common denominators. They worked on converting and comparing fractions and decimals.

Science

Students created landscape models on paper plates. They also explored how their school and home surroundings have changed over time using Google Earth. Each student gave an oral presentation about a Polish National Park.

History

Students have been working on a historical narrative project about a person from Polish history. They researched about the person's experiences growing up, and their accomplishments in adult life. They are in the process of writing the rough drafts of their narratives.
